

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a method and system for a hosted MVNO platform and management, which enables a MVNO to provide and market services to their user and potential users, based on a 3rd party virtual network offering which is based on at least one MNO network. The system provides an interface for the MVNO to manage their services across the virtual network and serves as a middleware between the services and the communication network and systems.